[A tall Black woman with big eyes and natural-hair braids, wearing a red top and black pants, addresses the camera.]

PAULA MORENO: I was the youngest woman to be a minister in Colombia. I was the youngest in the history of the country, because I was 28. And at the same time, I was the first Black woman to be in that position. I see power as a way of serving the society. My main motivation for doing this work is because I didn't want to be the only one. And I'm working to make that more the rule—not exception.
